CoachingPLUS

Supervision and leadership skills for my own research

Date and Time:
- Mon, 18 May 2020, 09.00–13.00 h
- Tue, 19 May 2020, 09.00–13.00 h
- Wed, 20 May 2020, 09.00–13.00 h

Place:
Online via Zoom (you will receive the access link in good time)

Target group:
Junior professors, Research Group Leaders, Habilitanden of all research fields

Trainer:
Dr. ès sc. habil. Alexander Schiller

Register by 4 May 2020: https://eveeno.com/coachingplus-supervision
(max. 9 participants)

Description

Junior professors and junior group leaders are invited to develop advanced skills to lead teams successfully in a competitive environment. Leading researchers should always try to improve their communication skills, understand group dynamics, reflect their leadership behavior and know how to use feedback in order to deliver a successful performance.

Contents:

- Responsibility for Leadership and Supervision
- Leadership tasks, styles and values
- Leadership and Supervision remote/from home office
- Self- and responsibility management: balance time, tasks, roles and interests, define own goals
- Leading a working group: Managing interests of different group members, enabling good scientific practice, describe scientific goals of your group and manage group dynamics + conflicts
- Represent your own position in the faculty: conduct negotiations (Harvard principles), use networks

Trainer

Dr. ès sc. habil. Schiller is a “Certified Facilitator” with the Thiagi Group and member in the “Berufsverband für Training, Beratung und Coaching” (BDVT). Dr. Schiller gathered a 16-years teaching experience at LMU Munich (D), EPF Lausanne (CH), UC Santa Cruz (USA), and FSU Jena (D). The DFG Heisenberg fellow Dr. Schiller was a junior professor from 2009 to 2017. His experience as chemist, researcher and group leader enables him to focus on the real needs of scientists. Moreover, he uses examples from everyday life in the laboratory.